Bonus
Q:

Keeping in mind the concept of "mida kneged mida (measure for measure)," what mitzva did Moshe do to deserve the honor of being buried by Hashem Himself?

I Did Not Know That!

The Torah's last verses describe Moshe's death. According to Rabbi Meir, Moshe wrote these verses 'B'dima — in tears.' But this word can also be read 'B'dema — jumbled.' This implies that Moshe wrote these verses in a disorderly fashion so their meaning could not be discerned.

Bonus

A:

While the Jewish People were busy collecting gold and silver from the Egyptians, Moshe concerned himself with locating and transporting Yosef's remains. Moshe wanted to honor the oath made to Yosef, that his remains would be taken out of Egypt and buried in Israel. Since he honored Yosef in burial, he himself was honored in burial.
